

Journey into Dawn

I HAVE traveled through the dark, I have traveled far,
With no moon to light my way,
And without a star
To pierce the darkness and to show
Me dearly how to go.

I have traveled toward the dawn—
Always toward the dawn.
Well I knew the light would break
If I journeyed on;
But the dark was deep, ah me,
In its intensity!

Then suddenly the East was lit,
Was lit with hope and light.
Weary I was, and worn I was,
But the long dark night
Lay like a shadow long since past—
And the dawn was there at last!
